Clients use the Enehey Group in their search for missing persons, compiling psychological and/or behavioral profiles, patent and copyright research or pre-legal preparation before they "take on the big guys". Frequently we are asked to suggest legal advisors specializing in their particular needs. We are particularly knowledgeable in educational issues for emotionally challenged and disadvantaged youth.

We do not accept every case offered. We do consider all of them and will refer to appropriate government or private agencies for counsel when necessary. We are not a Private Investigation Agency and subsequently do not handle divorce or domestic cases.

Now that you are somewhat familiar with what we do you may well be wondering how we can help your organizational or personal needs.

Our investigative research can and frequently does assist Law Firms, Corporate Legal Departments and Private individuals in background checks, employee screening, research in adjudication and sentencing, and statistical analysis by geographic region, trend analysis and many other areas where traditional techniques have lacked substance or have proven ineffective.

Museums, Foundations, Galleries and Showrooms along with Antique Dealerships find it beneficial to use our services in researching authenticity of important collections prior to auction, auction results for items sold or unsold, stolen or missing items can be traced. We are able to access information from four hundred auction houses in twenty-seven countries. While we do not handle appraisal issues or insurance fraud cases we can and do make referrals for clients.

For the record, we often accept cases from law-enforcement agencies on a pro-bono basis. It is our way of giving back to the community at large.

In conclusion, there are many words describing how we work. Discreet. Reliable. Cost-effective. The one we like best is: Unusual. THE ENEHEY GROUP. An unusual investigative research service. Those who need us find us close at hand. In the interest of security, our services are by appointment only.
